

IS HONORED BY RICHMOND BAR

Tender Resolutions Regretful of Death of James Muscoe Matthews Adopted.

A LIFE OF USEFULNESS

Associates Eulogize His Character and His Work—Family Connections.

Mr. James Muscoe Matthews, who died in Richmond on the 11th instant, was probably the oldest practicing lawyer in Virginia. He was certainly the oldest lawyer in Richmond, and was in active practice to the end of his life. He leaves several sons and daughters, who reside in Washington. They are Judge W. B. Matthews, a member of the Washington bar; George B. Matthews, the well known portrait painter; Mrs. Flemmer, wife of Mr. Adolphus Flemmer, of the Geological Survey, and Misses Ellen G. Matthews and M. V. Matthews, No. 525 K Street, Northwest, Washington. At a meeting of the Bar Association, of Richmond, shortly after Mr. Matthews' death, the following preamble and resolution, proposed by Mr. George Bryan, were adopted:

James Muscoe Matthews was born in Essex county, Va., in the year 1822. He was raised in the clerk's office of that county, and graduated at William and Mary College. He practiced at Tappanhook until the breaking out of the war, and then came to Richmond, where, at the suggestion of Hon. R. M. T. Hunter, he entered the Department of Justice as law clerk, and continued as such until the close of the war. During that period he codified all the statutes of the Confederate government. At the close of the war he resumed practice in Essex county, but in 1875 came to Richmond and entered upon the practice here. He was the author of "Matthews' Digests, Civil and Criminal," and "Guide to Commissioners in Chancery," standard works in the profession to-day, which will themselves be enduring monuments of their author's learning and industry.

Mr. Matthews was a man of simple life, direct and upright dealing, and sincere religious conviction. His spirit was cheerful and kindly. He spoke ill of no man. His quiet humor continued to the last, making his presence attractive to young and old. He died as he had lived, peacefully and confident of another life which will explain all that is mysterious in this and brings to him the peace which passeth knowledge. His ideas were those of him who sang:

"There is no death; what seems so is transition.
This life of mortal breath
Is but the pathway to the field Elysian,
Whose portal we call death."

Resolved, by the Richmond Bar Association, That in the death of James Muscoe Matthews the profession has lost a valued and useful member, one who has contributed materially to the sum of its knowledge, and by his labors has made ours less.

That the community has lost an upright citizen, who called now to his reward, leaves behind him the rich legacy of a good name and a life long and consistently conducted on high principles.

That the secretary be requested to transmit to the children of Mr. Matthews a copy of these resolutions, and that like copies be presented to the several courts, State and Federal, of this vicinity, with the request that they be spread upon their records.

Mr. Berry's Eulogy.

Mr. Benjamin H. Berry was then recognized and said:

"Now, Mr. President, I hate to intrude upon this association at this late hour of the evening. Were it not for the fact that I had been so intimately associated with Mr. Matthews for so many years I would not open my lips. I have been a young man at this bar; I have experienced the difficulties of all young men, and I have been at this bar until now my age is sixty years. I have been intimately associated with James M. Matthews for twenty years. I hardly think he has had a thought that has not been communicated to me in confidence, and I can say, in all my association with him, that he has been a gentleman of the highest standard, and one who has been connected up to the responsibilities of a Christian gentleman. And as a lawyer, I know not his peer; and I see around me young men who have come to the bar since I have and yet I know no man who had as calm confidence in his judgment and who was as clear and deliberate in his statements and as methodical in his arrangements as James Muscoe Matthews."

"When I first came to this bar, the very first book that Professor John B. Miller asked me to take and keep, and I have held it ever since, was his digest of the civil laws of this Commonwealth. I have a copy in my office now. They cannot be bought in this Commonwealth under $20 or $25, and Judge Staples told me that, when they

WAITING.

By BURROUGHS.

John Burroughs was born at Roxbury, N. Y., April 3, 1837. He is of English and Irish ancestry. He was reared on a farm, went to a country school, passed terms at seminaries, and for eight years taught school in the country. In 1865 he was appointed vaukeeper in the Treasury Department at Washington, becoming chief of a national bank division in 1872. In 1871, he, with two others, went to London in charge of $100,000 in United States bonds, to be exchanged through the Jay Cooke & Co. syndicate. He was made bank examiner in 1874 and since then has lived on a farm at West Park, on the Hudson. He is best known as a writer about inanimate nature and birds.

SERENE I fold my hands and wait,
Nor care for wind, or tide, or sea;
I have no more 'gainst time or fate,
For lo! my own shall come to me.

I stay my haste, I make delays,
For what avails this eager pace?
I stand amid the eternal ways
And what is mine shall know my face.

Asleep, awake, by night or day,
The friends I seek are seeking me;
No wind can drive my bark astray
Nor change the tide of destiny.

What matter if I stand alone?
I wait with joy the coming year;
My heart shall reap where it has sown
And garner up its fruit of tears.

The waters know their own and draw
The brook that springs in yonder height;
So flows the good with equal law
Unto the soul of pure delight.

The stars come nightly to the sky,
The tidal wave unto the sea;
Nor time, nor space, nor deep, nor high
Can keep my own away from me.

were preparing the code of 1857, they had never had before them as valuable a book, and they recommended it to every lawyer in the city of Richmond. He had taken the statutes as of that time; he had examined all of the authorities up to the date of the issue thereof, and it is a thing of daily use to me now on my desk in the pursuit of a business which is not necessarily the practice of law, but that of a commissioner, and I have to examine just as many questions; I have to go through just the same procedure as that old man went through.

A Noble Christian.

"But it is not so much as to his professional capacity, as it is the intimate personal association I had with him. He was a Christian in the highest sense of the word, and I would that every young member of the bar that hears me now could emulate him; that the ladies in the office, morning after morning, and the first thing that I saw that old man pick up was his Bible. He read it as carefully as I would read a case in which I was interested, and never did he take a step in his work until he had read his chapter, or whatever he had read in the Bible, and from these gathered the cohesive power of the law, and he knew it. He rose from a clerkship, not a common clerkship, a deputy clerkship. If you call it so, from which I have no doubt the most eminent lawyers in this Commonwealth rose. He had had instilled into him the ideas of practice which never failed him, and as he rose on successive steps, he placed his foot higher and higher, until he rose to the climax of being a profound lawyer, and so I found him."

"He has gone from us; he has left us, and we have only his example to follow. He is a landmark that has gone, and we go on apt to view the destruction of landmarks as to hardly give them a passing thought, and yet they are our examples. He has gone, he has left us, and when his soul took flight and winged way to the everlasting hills of God Almighty's paradise, I believe he carried with him the self-consciousness of unselfishness. I have only to say for him that I want to drop a tear upon his bier. I simply say for him that he ripened in time, and the fruit fell in full fruition, and when his soul took that everlasting flight, I believe that it is resting now under the shadow of the trees in God Almighty's paradise, where the fruit is all golden and fair."

The resolution, as offered by Mr. Bryan, was put and adopted by a unanimous vote.

A brief account of the action of Richmond's bar was given in these columns following the meeting, the delay in printing the resolutions and the eulogies, as well deserved, until this time, was unavoidable.

WINTER LIFE AT MECKLENBURG

Richmond People Spend Cold Weather in Comfort There.

BIG HUNT CLUB MEET

The Hunters and Dogs to Gather From Two States.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

"THE MECKLENBURG," CHASSE CITY, VA., Feb. 25.—Despite the fact, as Frank M. Stanton puts it in his last touch of winter verses, that the "South is still cold,"—in a sheet of ice and snow, the Mecklenburg has suffered by it, but not, as guests here could find no better place in which to live and keep well, comfortable and happy, and hence there are long stayers and new-comers and few departures. Among those who are making an extended stay are Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bell and Mrs. J. G. Bell, of Lynchburg, Va.; Dr. J. W. Martin, of the same city, who has returned here after attending his sister's wedding in the "Hill City," last week, who will probably remain for months longer.

Mr. Beverly Munford, of Richmond, is again here after a flying trip home taking a rest cure with good effect. Mrs. W. D. Simmonds, a wealthy Philadelphia sporting club gentleman, who has returned here after attending his sister's wedding in the "Hill City," last week, who will probably remain for months longer.

The diversions of the week consisted in part of a most interesting and entertaining talk by Rev. Mr. Robert Thompson, a Baptist missionary from Kobe, Japan, a brother-in-law of Mrs. C. P. Watson, of Richmond, here for a long time engaged in similar work in Japan. This entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed by some fifty or more guests, and the somewhat more formal, happy and most instructive lecture of Mrs. Thompson appealed to all who were fortunately present, as most eager listeners on life and customs among these wonderful people, to whom the world's eyes are now directed with satiating interest.

Invitations are being issued by the Mecklenburg to the hunting clubs in Virginia and North Carolina, club sections to attend a grand twin aster States meet here on March 22 to 25th, inclusive.

While the Mecklenburg's kennels comprise some thirty or more best-bred and trained dogs and cats, the neighborhood, furthermore, abounds in other packs. It is proposed that there shall be all the best dogs and men from Richmond to Raleigh in the fields on the Mecklenburg, to make this chase the merriest and most noted of riding after live fox in the State, and thereby engendering a most generous rivalry between these clubs with their points and manners.

The social feature will be one most worthy of the occasion, bringing the best bred and exercised sportsmen and business men and their wives and families to together under such enjoyable auspices, than for which purpose there is no place comparable to the Mecklenburg. The Mecklenburg, with its few hours, almost equivalent from the prominent points, such as Richmond, Lynchburg, Petersburg, Williamsburg, Norfolk, Raleigh Durham, Danville, etc. There could be no dull moments spent here where there are so many in and out-door attractions, not the least among them an ample and excellent library.

Every provision will be made to make this a most noted meet, and the proposition is to conclude the same with a grand ball. There will be special features of the ladies' visit. The Richmond Deep Run Hunt Club, it is hoped, will be a most conspicuous one in the event. Further measures will be noted in The Times-Dispatch from date to date.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Chenham, a most interesting couple, have been here since the first of the month, and several parties from Michigan and California have been here for a month or more.
